

What's in your Drink?

First Taste: The worst thing we have ever tasted. The little, tiny bottle it comes in says grape, but there was no grape in that drink what so ever. It's like that horrible cough medicine that doctors give you, and then have to chase down with a glass of water.

After Taste: Even worse than the first taste, although there was actually grape that was able to be tasted. Words can't possibly explain the taste in this small shot.

Description of drink: For a drink that stands about four inches off the ground, then all of us tasting it having about a ninth of it, the drink packs a punch. The second it is swallowed, you find yourself coughing and gasping for air. It's a very light pink color, and just a pain on the taste buds.